Recapture their attention!

83% of people prefer instructional videos over training manuals, according to research by TechSmith.

However, a recent industry study by Kaltura also revealed that 72% of employees still don't give linear training videos their full attention.

But interactive video is 81% more effective at keeping their attention.

DIAGEO AND THE UN: Wrong Side of the Road

One of the world's biggest producers of spirits and beers, Diageo collaborated with the UN Institute for Training and Research to target the global culture of drink driving. How do you teach a global audience more about the effects of drink-driving and the reasons behind it? Wrong Side of the Road uses interactive video conversations with people who have experienced drink-driving in countries around the world, presented as if the user is having a direct conversation with them.

"Stornaway is an essential tool for allowing us to experiment, tweak, refine and rebuild quickly and easily." Paul Mallaghan, Director of Creative Strategy and Content, We Are Tilt, creative agency for Diageo
